Age: 7th grade (13)

Descriptors: Impetuous, Adventurous, Intelligent, Charming

Bio: Unlike the rest of her family, Marilyn comes off as pretty normal...that is until she gets involved in the daily drama of being a middle-schooler. Whether it's exacting revenge on "evil" math teachers, playing Halloween pranks with grandpa, or just hanging out with her friends, Marilyn always seems to stir up trouble. Marilyn drags Eddie into her adventures, convinced it'll make him seem more "normal". She can be intense, and her methods are more than a little unorthodox, but she usually has good intentions at heart.

Herman Munster - Profile

Role: “Cool” Dad, walking mid-life crisis

Age: Mid-40’s

Descriptors: Warm, Childish, Confident, Passionate

Bio: Herman is a Hard-working bread winner. Well, when it comes to his job anyway. When it comes to his family and interests? Not so much. Herman is the embodiment of the “work-hard-play-hard” mentality. He can be childish and somewhat embarrassing in the eyes of his wife, but the kids think he’s great fun. His secretly goofy demeanor is usually hidden by his stoic appearance, but that flash of color in his ascot isn’t just to accent his monstrously good looks!

The ones who will steal the last discount chicken breast out of your cart while you’re grabbing milk? Yeah, he’s that guy. But sometimes he channels all that energy into his amazing mad-science projects, and ropes Marilyn and Eddie into his schemes. Grandpa is very defensive of his family, and will defend “the Munster way” to his grave. He is also convinced that the duck on his head is a Raven.
